HELDATST JAMES

Ratification of new peace commission treaties between the United States and twenty-six other nations was held up as "the crowning act of this decade of human effort" by Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, in a campaign speech here to-night.

"I never knew of a fight between two men if they let a day or a week elapse before proceeding to get physical satisfaction after their quarrel," Mr. Daniels said.

"Now that we have these treaties with these nations, great and small, the possibility of war is reduced to a minimum; it is a safe prophecy that nobody living to-day will see the day when these countries engage in war with the United States.

"Public opinion is the great world lever of to-day, and in the year which must elapse before a declaration of war, public opinion would crystallize against war and prevent a conflict. Next year will see an increase in peace treaties to include every civilized country. Arbitration has failed because it is compulsory." try. Arbitration is compulsory."
